Ants: One of the most common types of pests, many different kinds of ants exist. They can pose a larger threat than you think because some ants are capable of doing excessive damage, even to the frame of your home or business. Legacy Pest Control technicians spray for all kinds of ants, both in and outside, to ensure the infestation is stopped.

Bedbugs: Bedbugs are small, but an infestation can become a large problem if left untreated. Known to nest in cracks and crannies, bed bugs don't pose an immediate threat as they can't carry diseases, but they can certainly disrupt your home.

Cockroaches: Cockroaches are notorious for being difficult to kill. If they've gotten into your home or business, our experts know the best way to handle the problem and exterminate them once and for all.

Earwigs: Like bedbugs, earwigs don't pose any immediate threat, though that doesn't make an infestation of them any less upsetting. We know the best methods of not only removing them from your home or business, but also minimizing outside factors that may attract them.

Silverfish: Traditionally found in wet areas, silverfish particularly like carbohydrates, which can lead to an infestation ending up in places you really don't want them. It's best to contact a professional at the first sight of silverfish, as do-it-yourself treatment are ineffective against a full infestation.

Spiders: With many different types of spiders out there, it can be difficult to tell if the ones you find in your home are dangerous or not. Rather than worry, let our experts take a look and help with a problem that could be more dangerous than you realize.

Termites: Notorious for damaging the wooden structures of a home or business, if you think you have a termite infestation, it's better to take care of it sooner rather than later to avoid a more expensive repair. We offer a free evaluation to determine where you may be susceptible to an infestation, and take care of any type of current infestation.
