How Bed Bugs Get Into Homes

Bed bugs are sneaky hitchhikers. They don't just "appear"; they travel by clinging to:

- Luggage and travel bags (especially from hotels or public transportation)
- Used furniture or mattresses bought secondhand
- Clothing or belongings after visiting infested spaces
- Shared walls in apartment complexes and hotels

At Legacy Pest Control, we've seen it all: families returning from vacations, college students coming home, even moving trucks unknowingly transporting these pests.

| Quick Tip: Always inspect hotel beds and furniture seams when traveling!

Surprising Ways You Might Attract Bed Bugs

You might be surprised to learn that bed bugs don't discriminate — clean homes, luxury hotels, small apartments, it doesn't matter.

Common bed bug magnets include:

- Leaving laundry piles on the floor (easy hiding spots)
- Traveling frequently without checking your luggage
- Buying second-hand furniture without inspecting carefully
- High-density living environments (college dorms, apartment buildings)

Even frequent guests visiting from an infested home can unknowingly carry bed bugs into yours.

Early Warning Signs of a Bed Bug Infestation

Catching a bed bug problem early can save you time, stress, and money. Here's what to look for:

- Tiny red bites in a line or cluster, usually overnight
- Small blood stains on your sheets
- Musty, unpleasant odors around the bed
- Shed skins or tiny white eggs in mattress seams or furniture cracks

If you spot any of these, act quickly! Bed bugs multiply fast.

How to Prevent Bed Bugs from Coming Back

Once you handle an infestation, prevention is key. Here's how you can protect your home long-term:

- Use bed bug-proof mattress encasements
- Vacuum carpets, rugs, and upholstered furniture regularly
- Minimize clutter (fewer hiding spots)
- Inspect second-hand purchases carefully
- Be cautious during travel — inspect luggage before bringing it inside

At Legacy Pest Control, we offer quarterly preventative treatments to ensure your home stays protected, season after season.

FAQ

Bed bugs are drawn to warmth, carbon dioxide, and human blood. They aren't attracted to dirt or grime, but clutter can give them more places to hide.
